EXTORTION COLINGS MYSTERY

Demands for Money Made on Wife; Cult in Murder Is Sought

BULLETIN

New York, Sept. 21—A man closely resembling the older of the two kidnappers described by Mrs. Benjamin P. Collings, escaped from Kings Park insane asylum, Long Island, on the afternoon of Sept. 6, it was revealed today. The asylum is about seven miles from the point on the shore off which the Collings' yacht, Penguin, was attacked. The murder of Collings occurred that night.

By Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent.

New York, Sept. 21—Investigators, following an intricate maze of trails through extortion demands and a pagan cult of wealthy men, wrote a new act today for "Murder on the Yacht"—the ghostly slaying of Benjamin P. Collings.

What authorities believed was the soundest clue in the 13-day-old mystery was the revelation that for three weeks prior to the murder of Collings on his yacht in Long Island Sound no less than 11 wealthy summer colonists on Long Island had received demands for sums ranging from $2000 to $3000 from an extortionist.

ALL ARE SUSPECTS

Linked with this was the specimen test of the typewriter in the cabin of the murder yacht Penguin.

PETTER SOBS; HELD IN HOLDUP

Leaving his own girl snarled by the roadside, Harold Maxwell, 35 of Woodstock st., Allston, spoke through the woods and held up a robbed another parked couple in Avon according to charges against him in Stoughton Court today.

Maxwell was held in $10000 for the grand jury on probable cause. He went during the court proceedings.

After the robbery, according to the police, he returned to his car and when he found State Trooper Alfred Lachne and Police Chief Graham of Avon questioning him.

He showed his license and registration and satisfied them. But later when Clarence Rogers, 20, of Wakefield, reported being robbed at gunpoint, Maxwell was sought at his home and arrested for armed robbery.

Rogers said the robbery occurred shortly before midnight Sunday. He said he gave battle but was overpowered. Maxwell then robbed him, told him he was foolish to fight and demanded to know the girl's name, the victim said.

Maxwell is a truck driver and, according to the police, is divorced and has two children, one a year old and the other three.

Not a Discouraging Event," Says Financier; London Optimistic

BULLETIN

London, Sept. 21—The pound sterling was unofficially quoted at $4.20 today. It was predicted it eventually would be stabilized at $4.

The stock exchange committee decided that the stock exchange shall remain closed tomorrow.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE Chief of London Bureau, Associated Press.

London, Sept. 21 (AP)—J. P. Morgan today expressed to the Associated Press optimism regarding the situation arising from Great Britain's sensational abandonment of the gold standard.

He said it was a "hopeful and not a discouraging event."

Mr. Morgan made this statement in reply to a question from a correspondent who sought him out in his private office not far from the Bank of England.

"This step seems to me to be the second necessary stage in the work of the national government, the first being the balancing of the budget," Mr. Morgan said.

"The completion of the government's work will be restoration of trade in this country."

NOT ALL PESSIMISTIC

"This being the case, it seems to me a hopeful and not a discouraging event and one which brings the great work of the government to a close."

RAILS LEAD ADVANCE; CLOSE IS LOWER

Sliding Base and British Bonds Hold Steady in Face of Grave Crisis

BULLETIN

New York, Sept. 21 (AP)—Fluctuating widely, the British pound sterling dipped to a new low for the present decade of $3.75 before rallying to around $3.75 today. The foreign exchange market was demoralized and bankers experienced difficulty in establishing a market price for foreign currencies.

The Canadian dollar fell to the lowest level reached in many years, being quoted at 94 1/2 cents. The Italian lire sagged 2 cents, Spanish pesetas were off 10 points. French and Swiss francs were unchanged.

New York, Sept. 21 (AP)—The New York financial markets presented a formidable front to the tidal wave of unrest which swept across the Atlantic today.

Officers of the Stock Exchange met for an urgent session from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. to discuss the situation, and their judgment was vindicated by an unexpectedly orderly session. The market edged up vigorously after an opening slump of 1 to 7 points, losing gains of 1 to 5 in many cases at one time, but a secondary reaction in late trading cancelled much of the advance.

The list closed irregularly lower, with several losses of 1 to 4 points. Sales were about 450,000 shares.

READING UP

U. S. Steel, however, finished the day with a gain of nearly 5 points. Eastman and Johnson closed up after an extreme advance of about 7 and 9.

Both were buoyant for a time. Westinghouse closed up 2 after an extreme gain of 5. Several issues of the Public Service Co. of New Jersey, including Allied Chemical, Woolworth, Consolidated Gas, Paramount Public Service of N. J. and Saginaw, were off 1 to 2 points.

Some American Telephone, after selling off more than 5 early, closed at 100.

Reading Railroad, a thinly traded stock, was off 1 point.

DEMPSEY GETS DIVORCE TODAY IN RENO

Reno, Nevada, Sept. 21 (AP)—Jack Dempsey expected Judge Thomas F. Moran to award him a default decree of divorce today against Estelle Taylor, his actress wife.

Because she chose to seek her divorce in California, Miss Taylor, now in Chicago, failed to answer the former heavyweight champion's complaint here and was not expected to be represented in court.

Attorneys said she would attack the legality of Dempsey's divorce when her own suit comes on for trial at Los Angeles.

Dempsey said he would tell the court that unhappiness, which resulted from the fact that their careers conflicted, led to his separation from the stage and screen star. Other than a resident witness, he was to be the only one to testify. His petition charged cruelty.

NEW DELAY FOR HATHAWAY

Providence, R. I., Sept. 21 (AP)—Although under the Rhode Island law a convicted defendant may be sentenced at any time after his motion for a new trial has been denied by the trial court, Attorney General Benjamin M. McManus declined today he would make no move for the sentencing of Elliott T. Hathaway of Fall River until after the State Supreme Court has disposed of defense counsel's appeal.

Judge Charles A. Walsh last Friday denied a new trial. In the case of Hathaway, convicted of first degree murder in the death of Verma Russell, Portsmouth nurse, a sentence of life imprisonment is mandatory on the court.

LINDY AND WIFE FLY OVER CHINA FLOOD ZONE

Nanking, China, Sept. 21 (AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, volunteering their services to the Chinese government for relief work, made an aerial survey of the flood-stricken sections of northern Kiangsu province today.

They left here at 7:45 a. m. (8:45 p. m. Sunday E. S. T.) for the Grand Canal area of Kiangsu, some 500 miles distant, and returned at 4 p. m. (12 a. m. Monday E. S. T.).

Their offer to place themselves and their plane at the disposal of the government was accepted with thanks by President Chiang Kai-shek and T. V. Soong, finance minister.

The region over which the Lindberghs flew was inundated late in August. The loss of life was estimated at 100,000.

The fliers took a camera to obtain useful pictures.

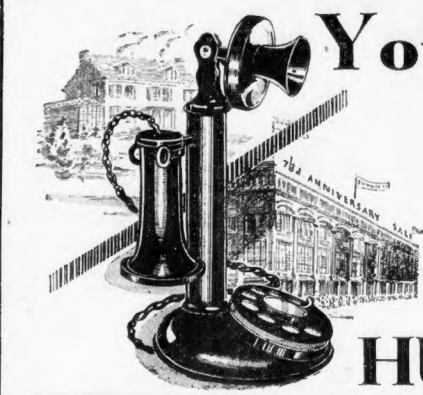

ARMY PAY RAISE PUT ON SHELF

Washington, Sept. 21 (AP)—The War Department for the next fiscal year calls for no increase in the strength of any component of the army and "certain economies will be effected."

Acting Secretary Payne said today he had informed Col. Charles R. Robbins, chairman of the national defense committee of the American Legion, that in addition to this the department had decided to postpone requests for increased pay for officers.

The department, Payne said, feels that to be useful in the highest sense "it must add strength and stability to the government, especially in times of emergency and stress."

CHINA PLEADS TO LEAGUE TO STOP JAPS

Peking, China, Sept. 21 (AP)—A Chinese official radio dispatch from Khrin, Manchuria, said that city was occupied by Japanese today.

Geneva, Sept. 21 (AP)—China formally appealed today for League of Nations intervention in the Manchurian situation under Article 11 of the league's covenant.

The league's council immediately called a special session for tomorrow to consider the Chinese plea, which arose from Japanese military activity in Manchuria.

China's note was delivered by Alfred Sze, minister to London, and cited Article 11 as a whole as the basis for league intervention.

Japan Rushes More Troops Into Manchuria

Tokyo, Sept. 21 (AP)—More Japanese troops moved from the Korean border today toward Manchuria, where soldiers of the Empire were holding the southern portion of the Chinese state in a military vise.

As the troop movements continued, the Japanese Cabinet met in extraordinary session, but adjourned without action.

It was disclosed, however, that the war office and the foreign office were not in accord on the Manchurian policy, and that the question had become the most acute in many years.

The chief point considered by the Cabinet, vernacular reports said, was whether developments had justified the sending of reinforcements to Manchuria as proposed by Minister of War Minami.

China in Upheaval Grows Bitter Against Japan's Acts

Nanking, Sept. 21 (AP)—China cried out today against the Japanese occupation of southern Manchuria.

In Nanking feeling against Japan was running high. Mass meetings were largely attended, students paraded the streets denouncing the occupation, and the government designated next Wednesday as "Humiliation Day."

Although official reports said Japanese troops had evacuated Kwanhsing, near Changchun, the terminus of the South Manchurian railway, other important cities of Manchuria remained in the military grip of the Japanese.

SHAW FAILS TO MOVE SOVIET

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 21 (AP)—Prof. Dmitri Krymyn of Yale University, who has for the past four years unsuccessfully attempted to persuade Moscow authorities to permit his wife to join him in this country, today said his dramatic appeal to George Bernard Shaw and Lady Astor in July had been met with another refusal.

He received a cablegram yesterday, he said, in which Mrs. Krymyn told of the official refusal of her application for a passport. She will make another application in a month.

Prof. Krymyn and his wife have been separated since 1929, when he, an authority on soil mechanics and highway construction, and for 12 years instructor in Moscow, came to this country and took a post at Yale.

"IT'S OUR BIRTHDAY . . . BUT YOU GET THE PRESENTS!"

BEACON HILL

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE R. FEARING, 3D (VERA HOWELL)—and we always like to mention the lovely Vera— took a house in Salisbury, England, in June and are not returning to the good old U. S. A. until the last of October. They entertained the Billy Eskines (Eloise Weld) and the Hackett Derbys (Alison Haughton) when they were over on their honeymoon. Mrs. Fearing and Mrs. Derby are sisters. They will both entertain for Miss Dorothy Forbes this winter, who is one of the season's debs and a relative of the Howells.

From where we sit, it looks as though "Bob" Ogden, who graduated from Harvard last June, is very devoted to a certain young lady who has just returned from a summer in Europe. He has been seen for her for four years—what can the matter be that she doesn't say YES. Or perhaps she has, it wouldn't surprise us. Her father is president of one of Boston's biggest business concerns—we will tell you that much—she came out three years ago and received the coveted invitations into the Vincent Club and is very pretty. Three guesses?

ANOTHER RAVISHING DEB IS JOAN LINDSEY—WE have been told. We have not seen her this season so far, but her friends, and she has many, consider she has a most perfect figure and the summer tag line says she is the most divine dancer ever. How many of the buds have red hair this year? Boys, beware! Joan has a round face, not TOO round, glorious crown of ruddy hair, white skin, blue, blue eyes and glorious, you know! But it is her carriage, her pride and quiet charm which are captivating.

JOAN'S MOTHER, MRS. LORNA STIMPSON LINDSEY, is the sister of Mrs. Charles Ridgely, mother of the beautiful Levermore girls. She divorced Haledale Lindsey some years ago—the year that women stepped out for independence of thought and action, cut their hair, dashed to Paris and cut their husbands. Haledale later married Mrs. Benjamin, one of the Beacon sisters, and he is interested in having daughter Joan step out in Boston. Mrs. Lindsey is too international in outlook to confine herself to this town, Boston is not her Mecca. She is equally attractive and was very popular last winter when she took a house on West Cedar st., always having a long cab-line waiting for her hospitality.

WE FEEL LIKE EVANGELINE ADAMS predicting the success of the coming winter ball, as no one who is intelligent takes us seriously anyway. We will keep right on prophesying and hope you get a smile out of it. Miss Joan is going to be hot.

of the bright pupils this year with money, beauty, charm, ability and normal life, she will hold an enviable position among the uninitiated.

MRS. JAMES WILLARD WHEELER is having her home for her daughter, Miss Jane, on Tuesday, the 28th of October, from 4 until 6 at her house on Chestnut Hill. Jane has been in Florence, England, and has a sister, Elizabeth, who came out two years ago. Mrs. Wheeler was one of the Beacon sisters of Buffalo before her marriage. The Wheeler girls are good girls of the Beacon.

Elizabeth Hovey and Nancy Hallowell, who have done so for them. And, could one have two nice girl friends? We have always been about Susan Hovey and Nancy Hallowell because they are REAL people.

MISS ANNE ROBBINS WEDS HIRAM WATSON SIBLEY SATURDAY

MAKES BOW TOMORROW

A fall bride who has chosen her attendant girl is Miss Anne Robbins, who will marry Mr. Hiram Watson Sibley on Saturday of this week. In King's Chapel, Mrs. Milton M. Warren (Sarah Robbins) and Miss Colina Robbins, sister of the bride, will have places in the party as matron and maid of honor, respectively, the others in the procession including the Misses Elfreda Carter, Ethel Grew, Nancy Brigham, Rachel Warner, Penelope Perry, Louise Paine and Anna Dickson, all of Boston.

Mr. Sibley has asked Miss Robbins two brothers, Henry and Chandler Robbins, 26, to be ushers, and the remaining men of the group include the Rev. C. Leslie Glenn of Christ Church, Cambridge, who was married to the bridegroom's sister, Miss Georgia Sibley, about two years ago, Mr. Herman Spicer, Mr. Alexander Keyes, both of New York, Messrs. Thomas Spencer and Harper Woodward, of Rochester, Frank Moss, of Philadelphia, Lloyd Sallus, of Morrisville, N. J., and James L. Madden of Boston.

Mr. Samuel Lane of Milton will be the best man.

The ceremony, a union affair, will be followed by a reception at The Country Club.

Miss Robbins is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Bradford Robbins of Marlborough. Mr. Sibley, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harper Sibley of Rochester, was graduated from Harvard last June. They will live in Rochester after their wedding trip.

King's Chapel Will Be Scene of Ceremony

For the garden party tea that Mrs. Charles Rodgwick Minot is giving this afternoon in honor of Miss Anne Putnam Peabody, at her Milton estate, Grammer, Miss Gertrude Peabody, an older sister of the debutante, will be in charge of the group of pourers.

The Misses Catherine and Cora Peabody, two other sisters, all of whom are daughters of the W. Rodman Peabodys of Readville, are included in this group, the rest being sister debutantes, Miss Mary Loring and her cousin, Miss Louise Vaughan, Miss Betty McInley, Miss Barbara Greenough, Miss Ada Trafford, Miss Elizabeth Locke, Miss Nancy Ayer, Miss Camille Brown, Miss Linda Collins, Miss Ruth Clark, Miss Martha Deane, who with Miss Ayer is a post-debutante, Miss Louise Richardson, Miss Grace Roberts, Miss Lydia Evans, Miss Isabella Lee, Miss Grace Minot, Miss Frances Winlock and Miss Betty Gram.

Bridal Group Is Announced by Miss Hedge

Miss Catherine Hedge, who will be married Saturday, Oct. 2, to Mr. Franklin Tweed Hammond, Jr., has chosen a group of 12 friends to be her attendants. Miss Priscilla Hedge, younger sister of the bride-elect, will be the maid of honor.

The group of bridesmaids includes: Mrs. Whiting Willauer (Louise Russell), Mrs. Benjamin A. G. Thordike (Elizabeth Gardner), Mrs. Alice Graves, Miss Louise Slocum, Miss Marjorie Merrill, Miss Cynthia Dolberg, Miss Jane Strickland, and Miss Harriet Hammond, sister of the bride.

Three young cousins, the Misses Alice, Susan and Lucia Hedge will be flower girls.

The wedding is to take place in the First Parish Church of Brookline, at 2.30, the Rev. Abner Peter, son of the rectory, officiating.

A small reception will follow at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rogers Hedge, of 100 Rockwood Ave., Brookline.

Mr. Hammond has chosen his brother, Mr. John McLeod Hammond as his best man, and the bridesmaids will include Messrs. Guido Panslone, of New York, Elliot R. Hedge, a brother of the bride, Oliver S. Leland, Edward A. Nally, Robert H. Hopkins, John J. Buran, Alfred Gardner, Warren Motely, and Donald C. Starr, all of Boston, and Dr. John Willard Hammond, of New Haven, another brother.

Gebeleins on Honeymoon in Bermuda

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest George Gebeleins are in Bermuda on their wedding trip. Mrs. Gebeleins was Miss Roberta Seaver, daughter of Mrs. Robert Seaver of Belmont and Provincetown, before her marriage, Sept. 17, in the son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Gebeleins of Wellesley Hills.

The ceremony, at the Church of the Pilgrims, Provincetown, was performed by the Rev. Dr. Frederick E. Emrich. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. Edwin P. Seaver and attended by Miss Helen Hubert of Scarsdale, N. Y., and Miss Johanna Seaver. Mr. J. Herbert Gebeleins attended his brother as best man and the ushers were Arthur D. Gebeleins, Gordon B. Gupill, Moses Ellis, Ed. Sherman F. Glendinning, Alfred T. Merian, and George Thordike Chase, Jr.

MR. AND MRS. DELANO

WIGHT of Brookline have sent out cards for a dance at The Country Club to meet their niece, Miss Mary Wight, on October 7. Miss Mary is the daughter of the Wightland Wright of Milton. Mrs. Delano was Margaret Crocker. She has money and social position. Her brothers are George Crocker and Courtney Crocker. Courtney Crocker was the representative from the United States to the 1920 Olympic Games. George Crocker, Jr., married Maria Brown a year ago, the daughter of the late George Crocker. Grandmother Crocker is the one woman left in Boston who drives every day on Commonwealth Ave. in her Victoria, with horse and coachman, sitting up very straight with her bonnet tied under her chin.

STROLLING ON THE HILL the other afternoon we met Mr. Jacob (Eleanor Scott Winslow) and she looked very chic in a black and white herringbone tuxedo. She means to go to be more attractive and cheerful than when she arrived from South America with her children last winter. Maybe it was just the perfect day.

A wearable outdoor costume.

RICH MAN IN 5 WORDS' GIVES HIS CREED

By Gilbert Seldes

When an American Secretary of the Treasury cut through the bickering of theorists and said: "The way to resume is to resume,"

he set a standard for hardheaded epigrams. But a few days ago I heard a summary of the situation which has all the qualities of great news. In the opinion of most people it is frightfully wrong-minded; it is anti-social. But at least it is frank.

The speaker was one of those who were called captains of industry a generation ago. He has made a great fortune by his work, by rewards and his salaries, by profitable speculation. And his view of the immediate future was summed up thus: "The poor, this winter, will want to escape starvation by using the money of the rich—and they can't have mine."

Soviet's One Good

Of course the statement was not made for publication—which is why I have temporarily forgotten the speaker's name. I am sorry that it wasn't.

Nearly everything said in public is in the language of diplomacy, a marvelous game in which diplomats make all the moves and ordinary human beings put up all the stakes and even pay the bill.

One of the refreshing things about the Soviet Republic in its first few years was its rejection of the language of this language of the courtier; the wireless tingled with sharp phrases which meant exactly what they said. International affairs have been more intelligent ever since; but in domestic problems, the smooth, worn-out, meaningless words are still current.

"They can't have mine" is a plain statement. With a few equally plain ones on the other side, a little advance might be made. For instance, we might get the answer to the question, "What can they have?"

Dangers of Reading

"Your column first attracted me," writes Miss E. K. "when you recommended Joyce's 'Ulysses' to the people." This isn't exactly flattery to my power of attraction, and, to be precise, I did not give a blanket recommendation to Mr. Joyce's stupendous work. But with the rest of the lady's communication I have no quarrel. It says:

"Evidently the advertisements calling for cultured young ladies don't mean one who has read extensively. . . . There isn't much call for typists who read Joyce. It is no use for reading is a grand way to it to cross words. Our secret opinion of ourselves goes too much for our good or our happiness. We just can't get down to earth."

"Only those who live among literate or have independent incomes can afford to read. The rest of us should stick to Phil Vance and bridge. We simply get too good for our jobs and surroundings. Paris is full of young boys and girls with their heads stuffed full of literature who fancy they can write or paint or do something that takes credit."

"Even nice ladies of (greater) age get all sorts of exalted notions about how they have missed their vocation, after a spurt of books. It ruins their cooking."

The Broad Mind

"We really do not get that rich inner enjoyment that is supposed to go with reading. We are only bored with the books and then we go to sleep. We secretly look down on our more sensible friends. What use is it to broaden one's mind if we have to put clamps on our tongues to keep from ever speaking our true mind—I mean the mind that reading formed?"

"There is a big hollow now about the uselessness of college education for the majority. At least most college grads consider the job of being educated over when they get their first degree, and then settle down to business."

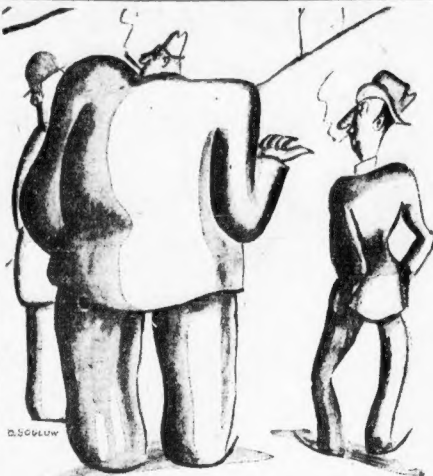

"But the rest of us, without that badge of learning, who no dutifully reading whatever we can find, will never get fit readers."

I think most adolescents go through an unhappy stage of thinking themselves superior because they read library books while their schoolmates are out skating, and this feeling persists in many people through their mature years. You can detect a note of resentment mixed in the snobbish announcement that, of course, on Tuesdays they have their symphony seats and if you say that you had a great time at the school or at night club they inform you, a little heavily, that they spent the evening reading Spinoza on "The Improvement of the Understanding."

Katydid

Immelodious little creature,
Curious in form and feature,
You seem like an impenetrable
Katydidling down the night.
Why, when hours grow dark and deep,
And a mortal wants to sleep,
Do you two would gladly lack it?
Raise such an infernal racket?
If it were not for the ladies
We would wish you down in Hades,
And if you keep up your row
We will wish it known.

What Miss Katy did, who cares?
Kettles have their own affairs.
We are not inquisitive.
So we say—let Katy live!
Better keep the matter hid.
Never mind what Katy did.
Clifton Scollard.

"He's My Bodyguard"

Off the Press

By Idval Jones

"IT IS NOT CUSTOMARY to regard hogs as very intelligent," says Ernest Harold Baynes, "but the wild boars have won the respect of all who hunt in the Blue Mountain forest. They are the craftiest creatures in this great preserve, not excepting the foxes."

In "Wild Life in the Blue Mountain Forest" Mr. Baynes says that 13 young wild boar were imported from the Black Forest, in Germany, to stock the game preserve, and, though there are many hundred of them, it is seldom that they let the hunters see a pigtail. They are wise enough to keep under cover of the trees by day.

Andre Teller, the author of "Twilight Area," one of last season's best sellers, has turned to a new theme entirely in his latest novel, "Witchfire," published by Greenberg. This book deals with the intrigue and espionage at the court of Emperor Franz Josef at the beginning of the World War.

For thousands of us when the old Grand Magazine was in its heyday, with Lewis and his cats, F. Anstey and Conan Doyle writing for it, the month was utterly apologetic if it didn't have a tale by W. W. Jacobs. Those old sailors and dog watchmen, pug owners, Ginger Dick and Sam Ruselet! Jacobs, unlike Glesing, had a real eye for life. And their dealings were salty little dramas, flavored with beer and churchwarden pipes.

The old fellows were a bit rapacious, the girls arch but not too hard to please, for all their uprightness, and everybody got involved in tuppenny intrigues, from which Jacobs instructed them with unflinching skill and humor.

"Barbar" (Scriveners) holds the pick of them from "Mossy Corroser" on to the last of them, which came out in 1912. A Jacobs yarn without a Will Owen drawing of the sagacious old tipplers would be unthinkable, and Scriveners have worked in a half hundred of them.

Anna Pavlova's lake, her swans, garden and home, Ivy Hill not far from Hasted, England, are all in the book. The place has already been put up at auction, and the excitement mixed in the snobbish announcement that, of course, on Tuesdays they have their symphony seats and if you say that you had a great time at the school or at night club they inform you, a little heavily, that they spent the evening reading Spinoza on "The Improvement of the Understanding."

Radio Good and Evil

By Deems Taylor

PROVIDED your faith in your own critical ability be strong enough to survive an occasional shock, you will find it amusing—as well as illuminating—to listen to an unidentified voice, as it comes over the radio, and try to guess who it is. The experience is especially instructive if you have always prided yourself on your ability to recognize voices. Discoveries, I do, and the number of times I have guessed wrong convinces me that platform personality contributes far more toward making a famous singer than most of us suspect.

Last Sunday, I heard a voice in the midst of Una voce per te, from "The Barber of Seville." It was obviously a well-trained organ, and was being handled with unusual activity and skill. High as the tessitura of this aria is, the voice was handling the top notes with comparative ease. It phrased well, its diction was good, and its intonation was above reproach.

Amv's Voice Glorious

"Now there," I said, turning to M., with the infrequent touch of patronage with which the professional critic always addresses the layman, "now there is a good example of why certain singers are well known. You can spot a good one the minute she opens her mouth."

"Who is it?" M. asked, averted.

I smiled indulgently. "Obviously, it is — never mind who I said it was. After all, some confidences should be sacred."

"You have been listening," said the announcer, "to Miss Anna Goldsmith. I never heard of her."

"Who's that?" asked M., skeptically.

"What?" I asked M., skeptically.

"I was unmistakably shocked," she said, "she's one of the most promising young singers we have. You can tell that by listening to her. She has an exceptionally good voice, and sings with intelligence and feeling. No wonder I thought if you want to learn more about it, read our magazine advertising. For the present, let's go on with the music."

Which, saving my face, I still maintain she is. This same Sunday evening, after the station announcement of a very good orchestral concert, a voice said: "You are the guests tonight of the makers of Gold Medal Flour."

I leaped for the dial, but the speaker was too quick for me. "Since we are your hosts," he continued, "we feel that the courteous thing to do is to let you go on listening to the concert, without interrupting some good music in order to tell the world that he stood back of his product and be sure and call up your dealer tomorrow and order a trial package and don't forget that winter is coming and economy is the watchword now that the weather is cold, and remember that the best is the cheapest in the end, and look for the trademark on every genuine package and don't forget our slogan—the night, in short, when the light broke and a broadcaster realized that good-will is an asset, and that one very effective way to amuse it is to let us here."

So let September 13, therefore, be set apart hereafter, to commemorate the historic night when a broadcaster did not open a radio concert with a male quartet singing a theme song, but did interrupt some good music in order to tell the world that he stood back of his product and be sure and call up your dealer tomorrow and order a trial package and don't forget that winter is coming and economy is the watchword now that the weather is cold, and remember that the best is the cheapest in the end, and look for the trademark on every genuine package and don't forget our slogan—the night, in short, when the light broke and a broadcaster realized that good-will is an asset, and that one very effective way to amuse it is to let us here.

Song at Evening

Sometimes when I'm weary
Of the close of day,
When my work has gone awry
And my plans have gone astray—
When my heart is tired
And my soul a little strained,
When I remember things I've lost
And ask a thing I've gained—
Then I close my office up
And hurry down the street,
And suddenly the world becomes
Quite fresh again and sweet.
For I know that with the evening
New peace will come, and rest;
And now I'll find new courage
When my head lies on your breast.
—Margaret E. Sangster.

THIS IS LIFE

JEWISH NEW YEAR AND A JEWISH WOMAN'S GLORIOUS SAGA

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

THE TITLE OF THIS COLUMN strikes me particularly today, because I am going to write about a book which illustrates it. It is a story, but it is more than a story. It is a true record of three or four generations of a Jewish family in America, and at times the Jewish New Year. It is a story to remind ourselves that the story of the Jewish people in America goes back to earlier days than we think and is not exclusively centered in the great cities of the East.

There were Jews in Boston in the days of Cotton Mather. It was a Jew who made possible the completion of Bunker Hill Monument, commemorating a great event in the war within another year. Jew helped finance. And now this story comes to remind us of the part the immigrant Jew played in building, up South and West. You will remember, perhaps, in "Omarron" the episodes of the gentle Jewish pedlar, who came to be a great merchant in the city that grew out of the rough boom town of the '80s.

A Story of Courage

This story by David Carb, called "Sunrise in the West," goes back even farther in our history. I like to write about it because it is written by a friend of mine, a Texas boy who came to Harvard and taught at the University of Chicago. For the story is hardly a novel in the ordinary sense of the word. It is the record of the life of David Carb's grandmother, whom he calls Babbette Rosenberg, who was born near Speyer and Karlsruhe in Germany, who migrated to New Orleans in 1849, went to a great event in the war within another year. Jew helped finance. And now this story comes to remind us of the part the immigrant Jew played in building, up South and West. You will remember, perhaps, in "Omarron" the episodes of the gentle Jewish pedlar, who came to be a great merchant in the city that grew out of the rough boom town of the '80s.

Horried by Slavery

They have opportunities to marry, but they will marry none but Jews. Finally Babbette marries off one sister and finds her own man, and goes with him bravely to a lonely farm in Mississippi, where she finds, to her surprise and something like horror, that she owns two slaves. In her the ancient humanitarianism of the Jews rises again and she determines to treat her slaves like fellow human beings.

Children are born and grow up, listening avidly to the old stories of the Jewish Testament told, not by their mother, but by the African slaves, who embellish the stories of Joseph and David with all the riotous imagination we enjoy in "The Green Pastures."

Her Son Goes to Texas

Once more Babbette has to start again in New Orleans, with no assets and four children as liabilities. She carries on, even when Simeon is brought home with a shattered thigh, bringing up her children to hard work and something of her own courage. She succeeds in a small way. Simeon, her eldest, who has her own spirit, takes a chance on a lottery and with the prize money sets out for the new land of Texas, settles in Fort Worth makes a living by teaching dancing and selling sewing machines and builds up a business of his own. He marries and his eldest son becomes his grandmother's favorite.

Then comes an interlude. Babbette goes home to see her mother in Speyer and to celebrate her birthday in the old German fashion. Caught by the Franco-Prussian War, she cannot get home. She sees the Paris of her childhood shattered by the siege and the commune. Eventually she gets home and settles down with her children to bear her part in the up-building of the raw Texas community, to become one with her people, to know everyone and to be known by them, to be surrounded by her grandchildren and their children.

At the end Leo goes to the World War to fight, not on the German side, but on the French. He returns in a French uniform and with the Croix de Guerre.

"Where did you come from?" she asks.

"Straight from Speyer," Leo said. "It's on this side of the Rhine, opposite Karlsruhe."

"At these words a new light leapt into Babbette's eyes; as a conqueror he had been occupying the city that had stirred her youth, directly across from the river from where she was born, the river of fables and her dreams—occupying her land, commanding her people. . . . They, two of all the people there, grasped the ironic significance. And seeing that the other saw, they clasped each other again, faster, firmer, as if to realize physically, the ironic symbol; that in three generations, in just ten years less than a hundred, an Ashtore circle had been converted into a Babbette circle."

"Sunrise in the West" is not a complex novel in the modern manner. It is a simple saga of facts that a boy learned at his grandmother's knee and that he resolved should not be forgotten. It is all true. It is another chapter in the notable record of the Jewish people in America.

THOUSANDS AT SERVICES OF YOM KIPPUR

Traffic Halls in 3 Streets to Care for Throngs Attending Synagogue Ceremonies

Thousands of persons thronged the temples and synagogues of the city today for the holiest day in the Hebrew calendar—Yom Kippur.

In the center of the city, a large crowd of Jews, many of them from the East, gathered to attend the services. The streets were filled with people, and the atmosphere was one of solemnity and devotion.

TWO BABIES OFFICIATE

Temple Israel congregation, the largest in Boston, conducted services at the temple in Commonwealth Ave. and in the meeting house at Riverside and Longwood Aves.

For the first time in the history of the city, two babies officiated at the services. The ceremony was a unique one, and it was a great success.

APPEAL FOR CHARITIES

Annually, at this time, the various Jewish philanthropic societies of the city make their appeal for funds to the Jewish community in the various houses of worship. The appeal is for the support of the various Jewish organizations and for the relief of the poor.

WOMAN LAWYER IS ROBBED

Quincy police today were investigating the robbery of a woman lawyer. The robbery took place in the city, and the woman was left with a large sum of money.

Underpass for Mattapan Children

Mayor Curley promised a delegation of mothers from the Mattapan district that he would see to it that an underpass would be constructed for the children crossing at Green St.

West Roxbury Paving

A contract for bituminous paving in Temple, Ivory and Leland Sts. West Roxbury was awarded to Benedetto Paving by Mayor Curley today.

DADDY TOSSED US OUT TO SAVE OUR LIVES

George and Elizabeth Scibelli were among the ten children tossed out of a window by Paul Scibelli to save their lives when flames swept their home, Washington Ave., Lynn, today.

WHERE FLAMES DID DAMAGE

Mayor Sends Police to Nutting's to Forbid Attraction Paris Wouldn't Have

'Corrid Texas Guman's "Too Hot for Paris" show proved too hot for Waltham today—and Mayor Patrick J. Duane clamped a ban on it.

The show, which was being given at Nutting's, was a very popular one. It was a very good show, and it was a very good show.

What Has Gone Before

Ernst, schoolboy when he played, tells the story of a group of war comrades who march home when peace comes. They hear of the German revolution en route, are shocked, and go on by train to their home city which they reach in a downpour of rain.

At the station the men separate. Ernst walks away with a friend, but the other two, who are still carrying a very heavy load, are still carrying a very heavy load.

Now Go On With the Story

We deploy across the street at the station. The story is a very good one, and it is a very good one.

Threatens Willy

Willy, the schoolboy, is a very good boy. He is a very good boy, and he is a very good boy.

END THE WAR

"Not so fast, Mate," says the one-armed man, now walking swiftly toward him. "We want a lot more! We want an end of war and end of all this blood! An end of murder! That's what we want. We want to be men again, not war machines!"

M'GRAY DENIES GIRL ATTACK

Lynn department stores manager, James M. Gray, today denied reports that a girl had been attacked in the store. He said that the girl was not in the store at the time.

WALSH QUAKES IN FEAR IN COURT

Dorchester Man Held Without Bail for Grand Jury; the Court is Crowded

Quaking in fear, and with eyes that shifted from judge to clerk and back again, Michael J. Walsh of Roach st., Dorchester, mumbled a barely audible "not guilty" today in Dorchester court on a charge of stabbing his wife to death Friday.

The murder complaint, told of a street fight between Walsh and his wife that was followed by a knife attack, was made known to the court by the district attorney. Walsh was held in the jail at the Dorchester house where he was arrested. He was held in the jail at the Dorchester house where he was arrested. ATTY. HYDE DIES AT COHASSET

Benjamin D. Hyde, prominent Boston attorney, died of heart trouble at his summer home in Cohasset, Mass., yesterday. He was 62 years old. He was survived by two sisters, the Misses Alice C. and Lorraine W. Hyde, and a brother, Harold Hyde. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

M'DEVITT'S HEAR FROM BRIDE

The reported marriage of Mary McDevitt, Brighton girl, to Stephen S. Bigelow, social leader, is still a mystery today with the two still in hiding. The girl's father said today that he has not seen or heard from his daughter and from Stephen in a week and has no idea where he is. Bigelow himself denied the marriage. He is convinced by John Watson, insurance broker, that the affair will be one of 40 Broad st. and George W. Whitney, friends of the missing man. Whitney is the society man who introduced Stephen Bigelow Franklin st. cotton broker, declared and Miss McDevitt.

INTERVIEWS WITH NEW ENGLAND BUSINESS—No. 5

THESE SALESMEN FOLLOW THEIR SAMPLES BY TELEPHONE

By a Leading Leather Dealer* as told to a representative of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company

TWENTY-ONE of our salesmen located in the principal shoe centers of the country call on leather buyers about once in two weeks. Usually a sample of leather is ordered by telephone from the tannery or nearest warehouse. Then, timing his call just after the sample arrives, the salesman quotes prices, guarantees deliveries, and gets the order. The telephone might not take the place of the original visit, but it does save the salesman a second trip. And we find the telephone service speedy, dependable and economical for this sort of work.

*A. C. LAWRENCE LEATHER COMPANY, BOSTON

TELEPHONE service has been tremendously improved within the past few years. Millions have been spent to add circuits, to speed up connections and to improve transmission. And, instead of adding to the cost of telephone toll service, this improved service is given at a lower cost. Selling is a salesman's job. The telephone not only will help him get into communication with his customer; it will enable him to transmit his personality in so far as he chooses to express it by his voice. A good product, a good salesman, and good telephone service make an effective team.

Every business subscriber in New England is listed in the New England Business Telephone Directory, just distributed. Listings are arranged by states, and by business or profession. You'll locate prospects there.

Talk about Jack Sharkey laying down or coasting—Pemberton's Corners in their coming jog over there in the late Squire Elliott's bill yard in Brooklyn, shaft Gotham, is mere drivel. With Dempsey coming back, Tunney warms, Schmeling blacked in New York until he fights Sharkey, and so on—many big news items are ahead of the Garretts' Gob to lose, and all of them are grabbing. Ernie Schaaf, protégé of the Boston Sailorman, is ten years away from the big matches. Dempsey, Tunney, Sharkey, and others will have to pass out of the picture before Ernie gets his "big shot." Half a million dollars, perhaps more, is in front of Jack Sharkey. Don't think for one minute the Squire of Chestnut Hill is going to pass up that half million just to provide a Roman Colosseum for the Garretts' Gob to lose. The Squire of the level-headed will be a thriller. It is likely to be the most sensational heavy-weight encounter since Dempsey-Purpo. Wait and see!

October is going to be a busy month in the Cauliflower Patch, particularly here in Boston. The Boston Garden has brougged three "major" attractions for October. On October 2, Lou Brouillard, who seems headed straight for the world's heavyweight title, will meet Andy Callahan. On October 9, Ernie Schaaf, the World's Dynamite, will meet Jack Dornal, who Dan Garroff says will avenge Schaaf's two defeats of Jim Maloney. On October 23, Brouillard is matched to meet Jack Thompson for the world's welterweight championship at championship distance and at championship weight. We told you good times were ahead, mates.

Blue jays are starting their fall hollerin'. The leaves are drifting down. Birds are flocking for the Southern migration. They 'train' daytimes. Great fun to watch 'em wheel and turn. When they start South they do their real flying at night. The frost is on the grass tops and in early morning and late evening there's a zip in the air. What's that, wood smoke we smell? Get down that 12-gauge or the old 38-55. Oil 'em up. Hunting time's a coming.

Six times has a team won a second consecutive world's championship. Never has a manager succeeded in putting three world series winners over in a row. Way back in 1912, Connie Mack with two consecutive pennants won was a big favorite to win and he did, but snubbed his toe and the A's finished behind Boston and Washington. At 68, is old Connie destined to accomplish a feat which he failed at in his hey-day? Perhaps. Anyway the Athletics with two straight world series victories, are a 5 to 3 favorite to win the coming tilt for the championship of the universe from the Cardinals.

"The batteries for the game, today, Ki-yl-yo and Ko-kei-o. The feller who is playing third is Dam-fin-o G-heh-o!" That's what some day the umpa will say, and hot on it my dearies. There'll come a day when Japs will play the Yanks in real World Series.

BACKFIELD STARS DOMINATE IN COLLEGE FOOTBALL; ARMY, GREEN STRONG

Football squads throughout the country, with between one and three weeks of hard work behind them, square away this week to opening games. There was scattered skirmishing along the midiron front over the week-end, notably Stanford's 48-0 win over a West Coast Army team and Virginia's 18-0 victory over Roanoke, but the coming Saturday will find practically all the big teams in action.

In all there have been 167 football games scheduled throughout the country for Saturday, with 36 games scheduled Friday night. That means of course that more than 167 football men will play. First or second games and that approximately 16,000 young college athletes will be ready to swing through four periods of man-to-man contact.

It, of course, will be impossible in these articles to discuss all the college teams, but outstanding teams and games and players will be weekly touched upon. This week's schedule finds teams like Boston College, Brown, Dartmouth, Chicago, Minnesota, Colgate, Columbia, New York University and Fordham, Cornell, Penn State, Georgetown, Holy Cross, Lafayette and Lehigh, Michigan State, Virginia, Texas, California, Southern California and Stanford playing fairly easy games.

So far there has been little way in which to get a line on the actual development of most of these teams. Most of the college teams had scrimmages with second variables on Saturday, the scoring mostly in proportion to the length of the scrimmage and the strength of the second teams. Harvard, for instance, scored 25 points in an offensive scrimmage of an hour and 25 minutes doing much more than 100 players were in action. Yale, with Joe Crowley, hitherto not noted as a ball carrier, running wild, scored 26 points, and teams like Dartmouth, Army and others had equally long sessions.

It has been interesting to football men to note the names of athletes obscure figures in the football world showing well on college fields. Some men lend themselves more easily to the "hill followers" fancy than others. Take the case of Phil Sheridan, the 118-pound end, who has been working on the Army's A team for the last year. He was sent to West Point from the service, has a team record of 10 touchdowns and has been above 90 in his scholastic work. It is said, an end who has been above 90 in his scholastic work was lost in the shuffle a year ago when Army had so many good ends, but has done well this year.

Most coaches like good-sized ends, from the offensive standpoint particularly. Yet there have been many cases when a small end has been a star. One of the great ends that ever played the game was Frank Hinkley of Yale and he was only about 115 pounds.

There have been college seasons which have been dominated by stars in certain positions. A year ago there were some great centers, Ben Tucker of Harvard, Stano of Fordham, Hein of Washington State, Morrison of Michigan, Andres of Dartmouth and Loewer of Yale among them. This year most coaches have had problems and a wealth of backs. In fact, I can seldom remember will squads as is the case this year.

Twelve dozen of the leading Eastern teams, Army, Dartmouth, Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Cornell, Columbia, New York University, Fordham, Brown, Penn and Colgate. All seem to have plenty of backs, the worth of which will be fully expia in the next three or four weeks.

Army has Carver, Stecker, Herf, Fieldin, Kilday and Prentiss among its more prominent backs. Dartmouth has Morton, McCa, Fringard, Fishman, Viviano head-line of backs. Cornell has Gay and while on the subject of Cornell it may be well to say that the Cornell team has been one of the best teams in the country for years. It has had in recent years, Cornell lost two games last year, Cornell, Columbia and Dartmouth, but it had a scoring team, and Doherty.

Mayor Lehman, of Tarrytown, N. Y., announces that the names of all speakasies and speakasie patrons will be posted on a public bulletin board.

This is nice for old-fashioned children who get lonely for their parents—a sort of Social Register.

Another good idea might be to post the raiding dates on the bulletin board twenty-four hours in advance.

IT CERTAINLY WAS A LAUGH ON THE DOG!

"A certain director asked a lady to sit next him to photograph several all-day and all-night scenes. She said she would, but he had gone ahead, and she had to wait for him. She said she would, but he had gone ahead, and she had to wait for him. She said she would, but he had gone ahead, and she had to wait for him."

"Trouble with romance is this age," said Genevieve, the kitchen cync, "is the men regard women as nothing but playthings and women regard men as nothing but pay-things."

Gals who cut capers, Soon land in the papers.

Q. AND A DEPARTMENT

Dear Aunt Bella—My girl is skinny, cross-eyed, knock-kneed and has no chin, but I love her. Should we marry?—Worried.

Ans.—With the taste for knock-kneeds that you must have, I don't think it'd be interested. Thanks just the same, though. Yeh.

—Aunt (Occupied) Bella.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS
Now, dear, you know it didn't happen that way.

Hold everything.

Little Willie, pert and sly, Put ground glass in papa's pie.

Mother said, "Boy, you're a riot—"

"Pa needs roughage in his diet."

Another one of our ideas they've swiped. But why don't they be frank and call it "parole"?

STIPULATION

Oh hit me with a brick, m' love, In any spot you choose, But promise me that it will be A WINE BRICK that you use!

And then there's the kind of girl every man wants to marry on his tenth wedding anniversary.
